

20th January 2012

Dear Parents,

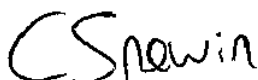

Salters' Festival of Chemistry

Last year, four Year 8 girls attended the Salters' Festival of Chemistry; a day of two practical challenges followed by a demonstration of some fun experiments. You may have seen the pictures, and an account of the day, in the most recent Vive publication. The girls had a great time and were awarded 2nd place in the Salters' Challenge. This year I have arranged four more places for the event to be held at Brighton University on Wednesday, 13th June. Pictures from previous festivals can be found at <http://www.salters.co.uk/festivals>.

As places are very limited, I am asking all girls who are interested in going to submit a short application, no longer than 200 words, explaining why they would like to go. They could include why they like chemistry, any particular reactions/experiments they have enjoyed seeing/doing, and what they think they would gain from the experience. Two girls will be picked from each form, with a third girl as a back-up in case of somebody being unable to attend.

All applications should be sent via email to: snewinc@farlingtonschool.net by Friday 24th February.

Yours sincerely,

Mr Chris Snewin